BOAT IN DISTRESS ON LAKE

No Name or Details Registered at Waukegan or Kenosha Harbors

SHOWS DISTRESS SIGNALS

Storm Very Severe on Lake and Damage to Waukegan Slight, But in the Country Greater

At 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, at the height of one of the most furious gales lake Michigan has ever seen, when rippling winds tore branches from trees, turned over buildings, and spread general havoc, E. C. Schwartz of north Sheridan road, insurance man and son of Samuel Schwartz, saw in the midst of the lake, tossed high by angry waves and flying before the tempest, a boat in distress.

There is no report to be obtained as to what boat or whether she weathered the storm or not, but she must have gotten through safely or some of the ports would have news of her trouble. Few Waukeganites witnessed her struggle.

Northward down the lake, she tottered her distress signals with whistle and showed first one, then two, then three and then a string of white lights. She was due east from the Schwartz residence when sighted, and Mr. Schwartz aroused his brothers to call their attention to her struggle.

In spite of the fact that the spiteful strength of the gale aroused people from their slumbers and set them on a three o'clock in the morning excursion about their homes closing windows and belting down everything possible, the damage in Waukegan was slight. Several trees were blown, one in front of the Garton property on north Genesee street. In the county the damage was greater and besides trees blowing over, crops were blown and damaged, while flower beds all over suffered.

A huge poplar tree, nearly two feet in diameter was blown down by the wind at the corner of Poplar and Porter streets. The tree was broken off near the base and fell to the ground with a crash that could be heard for a full block.

Another feature of the storm was the overturning of a blacksmith shop at Zion City. The shop, which belonged to Samuel Austin was being removed from the residence district, following an order of the courts sustaining the claim in the famous Zion City leases.

The building was on rollers, and was left unguarded while the men were at home. The wind struck the building full, overturned it on its side, and it remained in this position the entire night.

Appropriate Recreation.
An author, whose work is imaginative, should, for his rest, do something logical, such as playing patience. An accountant, on the other hand, whose mind will run on figures, should not play patience. He should mold figures out of clay or paint or do something artistic.

CORN PRODUCTS CLOSES

The Plant at Waukegan to Close Indefinitely, it is Said

The plant of the Corn Products Refining company in Waukegan is to be shut down indefinitely. This statement was given out late Tuesday afternoon by Charles Eberts, superintendent of the plant who declared that he had just received it from headquarters. This will throw from six hundred to seven hundred men out of employment.

The order goes into effect immediately and the big plant will be shut down completely inside of a week during which time it will be run to use up the raw material on hand.

Mr. Eberts asserted that his instructions were very brief but that he expects to have more complete information later. He says that the plant will be closed from four to six weeks anyway—whether it will be longer he does not know.

Although Mr. Eberts when questioned, denied that he knew anything about it, there are some who think that the company's action may have resulted from the insistence with which some people demanded that the plant abate an alleged smoke nuisance.

The plant, according to Mr. Eberts, has been running at nearly full capacity all the time so it is hard to figure out any other solution of the matter.

GAS LAMP EXPLODES

Raymond Bairdow Burns Eye Severely as a Result of the Explosion

Raymond Bairdow of Waukegan, was burned severely and may lose the sight of one eye as the result of a calcium carbide lamp on a motorcycle exploding in his face. Dr. Gavin who is treating the injured member has hopes that he will be able to save the sight. The left eye is afflicted also as the result of a sympathetic affection.

Bairdow had ridden the motorcycle to Libertyville Tuesday night but noticed that the lamp on his machine was not burning properly. He dismounted and unscrewing the cap from the water reservoir that feeds into the carbide, passed his face close to the opening so that he might see if there was plenty of water in it. He held a lighted match close to the opening so that he might see better.

A moment later there was a blinding explosion and a tongue of flame leaped up from the lamp striking him squarely in the eye. His eyelashes were burned off and the ball of his eye was scorched. He went to a physician who treated his eye. He then rode home in Melvin Pitt's automobile and consulted Dr. Gavin.

It is believed that gas had collected in the water reservoir which became ignited when he applied a match to the opening.

CHICAGO DOCTOR NEAR DROWNING AT GRAYSLAKE

To the bravery and presence of mind of Ralph Proctor, a Chicagoan, Dr. Lee, a physician practicing on the North Side of the same city, owed his life Sunday at Grayslake, Ill.

Dr. Lee, who had spent the day automobiling with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ellis, the former an attorney for the St. Paul railroad, with a summer home at Grayslake, returned to the lake late in the afternoon and went out into deep water in a row boat to take a swim before supper. The boat got beyond his reach, and, exhausted in swimming after it, he went beneath the surface of the lake three times.

Ralph Proctor, another Chicagoan, heard his frantic cries for aid and dove from his own boat to effect a rescue, bringing Lee up by the hair. He managed to drag Lee into his own row boat and brought the physician to shore, where he was resuscitated. He effected the rescue at the risk of his own life.

Electric Power for Housework.
The total cost of power for sawing, washing and wringing, mangle ironing, chopping meat, grinding coffee, and pollabing silver would be a sum that almost any housekeeper would be willing to pay for a few hours more to call her own, or for being able to take a more independent stand on the servant question. Electricity has advanced far enough now to give her the opportunity she has longed for.—Electrical Review.

Record Christening Party.
A unique party met in Aberdeen, Scotland, recently to celebrate a christening. In addition to the parents of the child, there were present the following relatives: Four grandparents, one great-grandfather, four great-great-grandmothers. Their united ages were nearly 800 years.

LAKE VILLA SCHOOL HAS HOME GATHERING SATURDAY EVENING

Reception Held and Old Associations and Early Friendships Renewed by Old Timers

PROGRAM BY PAST AND PRESENT SCHOLARS

Many Former Teachers and Scholars From a Distance Attend and Merry Time Is Had by All—Auld Lang Syne is Rendered by Gathering

Last Saturday evening the Lake Villa school had a home gathering of her former students and teachers.

A reception was first held in the spacious parlors of Mr. Fred Hamlin's home, and here old associations and early friendships were renewed, and the young and budding blooms mingled with the seared and yellow, and for the moment all were school children once more.

At 8:30 all adjourned across the street to the banquet hall where the Ladies Aid had prepared a most sumptuous repast.

After the banquet came toasts and speeches, and the principal, Miss Gertrude Miller introduced Mr. Frank Sherwood as toastmaster.

Mr. Sherwood responded with an amusing and entertaining speech, and each member on the regular program was introduced with some apt and amusing remarks. The regular program for the evening was as follows:

Toastmaster..... Mr. Sherwood
Song..... "School Days"
Response, "The Start"..... Hazel Wilton
Response, "Head Lights"..... Olive Nelson
Music..... Mrs. F. Sheehan
Response, "Chauvins"..... Ray Kerr
Response, "Pneumatically Tired"..... Mayor Hamlin
Music..... E. Wald
Response, "Cranks"..... D. B. Sablin
"Runs"..... Down the Line
Song..... "Auld Lang Syne"

After the regular program, several old members of the school were called upon for short remarks, among them H. S. Sherwood who not only was a member of more than fifty years standing but also a former teacher. Also Mrs. Rowling, a daughter of LaFayette Allen, Mrs. Hendricks, a daughter of H. S. Sherwood, M. S. Miller, father of the present principal and also a former teacher, George Hall, son of Warren Hall, Mayor Hamlin, and others.

After one of the most delightful evenings enjoyed in many a day, all joined in the closing song of Auld Lang Syne.

It is inherent in human nature that in our advanced years we hark back to the happy times of our childhood days. The halo of distance seems to invest those early scenes and incidents with a rosy hue. The birds seemed to sing a little louder and sweeter, the flowers were a little brighter, the fields a little greener, and mother's pies and doughnuts were a little better than anyone makes now a days.

We seem to forget the hard and rough places along our childhood paths, or if we do not forget them, we remember them only with a measure of pride and glory that we were able to successfully fight our way through and to overcome what often seemed almost insurmountable barriers to further progress.

RICHARD CONOLLY IN EUROPEAN TRIP FROM ANNAPOLIS

Richard Conolly, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conolly of north Sheridan road, Waukegan, and a student at Annapolis, embarked with the rest of the school, except the graduating class, on the war vessel Massachusetts and will enjoy an European cruise that will include visits at Queenstown, Ireland, Bergen, Norway, Kiel, Germany and Gibraltar among other points. The middies may also witness the coronation in England.

Honor for Ancient Historian.
The writer of the first Japanese history, the Kofu, was Osho Yasumasa, who lived some 1,200 years ago. The Emperor of Japan has just "posthumously conferred" on this venerable Bede the junior grade of third rank.

Every achievement which is worth the having is won only through severe trial effort, and it is by means of these very efforts that we become stronger, each effort being a stone upon which we may rest our feet and climb higher.

But with all due deference to early scenes and old associations when we come to make a calm, unbiased, unprejudiced comparison of facts and conditions as they now exist with those of fifty years ago, we are compelled to admit that the present has its advantages, and that, after all, when it comes to the real comforts of life, as well as social and educational privileges, we cannot deny that the present affords to the average man and woman many privileges and opportunities which were not enjoyed by our fathers and mothers.

Perhaps the following lines from "Homer" express rather ironically but truthfully the real feelings and sentiments of many a day dreamer:

I'd like to be a boy again, without a woe or care,
With frockies scattered over my face
and hayseed in my hair;
I'd like to rise at four o'clock and do a hundred chores,
And sow the wood, and feed the hogs,
and lock the stable doors;
And herd the hens and watch the bees,
and take the mules to drink,
And teach the turkeys how to swim,
so that they will not sink;
Milk about a hundred cows, and bring the wood to burn,
And stand out in the sun and churn,
and churn, and churn;
And wear my brother's cast off clothes,
and walk four miles to school,
And get a licking every day for breaking some old rule;
And then come home again at night
and do the chores some more,
And milk the cows, and feed the hogs,
and carry mules galore;
And then crawl weary up the stairs
and seek my little bed,
And hear dad say, "that worthless boy,
he is not worth his bread."

I'd like to be a boy again—a boy has so much fun,
His life is just one round of joy from rise to set of sun.
I guess there's nothing pleasanter than closing stable doors,
And herding hens, and chasing bees,
and doing evening chores.

IN A BIG TENT.
The theatrogoers of this vicinity have a treat in store when "the cow boy, the Indian and the lady" comes to Antioch on Wednesday, June 14. This is one of those quiet melodramas that burns like powder. Still abounding in heart interest and thrilling climaxes, it tells a beautiful love story of the plains, with just enough comedy to relieve the intensity of the dramatic situations. The story is told in five acts and the company carry all their own scenery and stage equipment for the entire production. The plot and scenes are laid along the Rio Grande River in the early nineties, a very interesting period in the history of Texas. Mr. Ernest Stout, the author, has added but very little fictitious embellishment to the already interesting facts. The costumes which are historically correct is a feature of the performance. "The cow boy, the Indian and the lady" comes to Antioch highly recommended.

Notice to Horse Owners

MAKE PURCHASE OF FINE LAND AT CHANNEL LAKE

Earl Butterfield of Libertyville has purchased what is believed to be the finest ninety acre tract of summer home and lake resort land left in the county, on the west shores of beautiful Channel lake and right next to the Woodbine subdivision. It is also near the Gifford hotel. Twenty-five or thirty-five feet above the lake and with a sandy, crystal clear beach, there is a spring near by and the land is covered with primeval trees and second growth. The land originally belonged to the William Davis estate until recently in litigation, and Paul MacGuffin and Ernie Davis of Libertyville and Orvis and Reuben of Waukegan have charge of the sale of the lots. Plots are being made.

DEAD MAN WAS RESIDENT

Young Man Killed by Train at Lake Forest Was Stealing a Ride

George Bradski, a Chicago youth, Monday night signed a written confession to the effect that the young man who met death on the morning of 18th April, at Lake Forest, Ill., by being crushed to death beneath the wheels of a passenger train on the Chicago & North Western Railroad, was his bosom friend, Andrew Hayes, whose parents are residents of Lake Zurich, Ill. The young man is also a nephew of Mrs. A. Reinhold, who resides at 117 South Lincoln street, Waukegan.

On the morning of the 18th day of April the mangled remains of a young man, apparently 20 years of age, were found scattered on the tracks of the C. & N. W. Railroad at Lake Forest by a C. & N. W. train crew. Inasmuch as every effort upon the part of Coroner Taylor to locate some one who could identify the remains proved fruitless, the corpse was buried in the Potter's field cemetery.

Hayes in company with Bradski, it develops were stealing a ride from Chicago to Waukegan on the night of the accident which resulted in Hayes' death. When the train on which the two young men were riding reached Lake Forest, Bradski claims a member of the train crew discovered them riding the blind baggage, and drove Hayes off the train at the point of a gun. Bradski, it develops, stood on the blind baggage. Hayes jumped from the swiftly moving train, and was crushed to death beneath the wheels of the train. Bradski, it develops, has been troubled with a guilty conscience, and for this reason and no other, he confessed that the dead man was his associate.

Bradski says that he and Hayes had intended leaving the train at Waukegan, where Hayes had an appointment to meet Dr. F. C. Knight.

MAKES TWO RULINGS IN HOOSIER CREEK DRAINAGE FIGHT

Judge E. B. Holden of the circuit court, of Kanosh County who has heard the remonstrance of different farmers affected by the Hoosier Creek Drainage Canal, and who are dissatisfied with the assessments levied against them by the commissioners, gave out rulings that Paul Madans was entitled to 2200 damages instead of only $15 as fixed by the commissioners, and that the damages assessed against the property of M. P. Cunningham should stand as fixed.

In asking that his damages should be increased Cunningham put up a novel contention, claiming that his lands was rich in peat beds and that the draining of it by means of the canal would practically spoil it.

This plea, according to Cunningham, is designed to become a fuel of the future, and therefore is exceedingly valuable. Judge Holden, however, held that the contention of Cunningham was of too remote and speculative a nature to base any findings upon, and ordered that the findings of the commissioners in regard to this case stand as they were.

In according his decision in regard to the Madans remonstrance, the judge stated that he thought the commissioners had fixed the amount of damages entirely too low in awarding Madans only $15. Madans' land is located almost the same as the McNamara farm, in which the damages were raised by a jury last week, so the judge ruled that taking this under consideration he would raise the damages to $200.

DEATH OF ONE OF LAKE COUNTY'S OLD SETTLERS

On Friday last another one of Lake county's old settlers, Mrs. Huston Dillie, of Gurnee, was called to her reward. The direct cause of her death was an attack of pneumonia coupled with the infirmities of old age and after suffering for eleven weeks she departed this life at the age of 74 years, 9 months and 15 days.

The deceased was born at Cuyahoga county, Ohio. In 1863 she was married to Huston Dillie and after living in McHenry county three years they removed to Gurnee where the remainder of their lives were spent.

She is survived by two daughters, 5 grandchildren, 5 great grandchildren and many other relatives as well as a very large circle of friends. The funeral services were held at the Gurnee church Sunday with interment in the Warren cemetery.

TO HOIST BOATS BY WINDLASS

Project to Connect Chain of Lakes Broadens Out Materially Now

CANAL NEARLY FINISHED

People of Lake Resort District are All Cooperating and Making Plans to Beautify the Route

The project to excavate a canal between Long Lake and Fox Lake in Lake county, the popular resort district northwest of Chicago, and reports might be shortened materially and a third of the trip be made by motor boat, has broadened out among hotel owners and boaters of the lakes region until now, with the initial two mile canal half done, channels are being cleared, minor canals dug, and dredging is being done, to make possible a motor boat trip between Long Lake railway station of the St. Paul road, from the platform of which one will be enabled to step into one's motor boat, clear to McHenry, Ill., or all through the chain of lakes.

The original project for a canal connection between Fox and Long lakes is in the hands of Voller and Schwartz, dredgers and contractors of Napanee, Ind., who are shoveling a ditch two miles long, twenty-eight feet wide, and six feet deep between the two resort lakes. The canal begins by the side of the Long Lake railroad station, three fourths of a mile from the lake proper. Its completion and other work now in progress will make possible uninterrupted connection by water and motor boat between Long, Fox, Grass, Channel, Marie, Katherine, Pistakee, and all of the resort lakes of the northwestern part of the state.

One of the novel features is the dam being built co-operatively by the people of the entire district at the east end of Long Lake. Completed once, it is to be built higher. Tracks of the nature of railroad tracks are laid in the water, and on these, below the dam, a sort of a movable dock is to be operated. Motor boats will run into this dock and be windlashed up to and over the dam one at a time.

The trip through the chain of lakes and over to the Fox river by water to McHenry will be fourteen miles uninterrupted, save by the necessity of being lifted over the dam. The canal and its supplementary work will open to easy traffic many practically numberless bus and cab lines in the district.

Backers of the big project are all resort owners and Chicagoans who own summer homes on the various lakes. The canal, with its inducement of several hours cool water riding on the hot summer days, is expected to bring a new class of resorters to the lakes.

SYNOPSIS.

He was a handsome man, with a strong, well-set jaw, and a pair of eyes that were as blue as the sky. He was a young man of about twenty-five, with a serious, but not a gloomy, expression. ## CHAPTER XVI.

I Face Flannigan.

Dinner had waited that night while everybody went to the coal cellar and stared at the hole in the wall, and watched while Max took a tracing of it and of some footprints in the coal dust on the other side.

I did not go. I went into the library with the guilty watch in a fold of my gown, and found Mr. Harbison there, staring through the February gloom at the blank wall of the next house, and quite unconscious of the reporter with a drawing pad just below him in the area-way. I went over and closed the shutters before his very eyes, but even then he did not move.

"Will you be good enough to turn around?" I demanded at last.

"Oh!" he said, wheeling. "Are you here?"

There wasn't any reply to that, so I took the watch and placed it on the library table between us. The effect was all that I had hoped. He stared at it for an instant, then at me, with his hand outstretched for it, stopped.

"Where did you find it?" he asked. I couldn't understand his expression. He looked embarrassed, but not at all afraid.

"I think you know, Mr. Harbison," I retorted.

"I wish I did. You opened it?"

"Yes."

We stood looking at each other across the table. It was his glance that mattered.

"About the picture of you," he said at last. "You see, down there in South America, a fellow hasn't much to do evenings, and a chum of mine and I—we were awfully down on what we called the plutocrats, the—the leisure classes. And when that picture of yours came in the paper, we had—we had an argument. He said—"

"What did he say?"

"Well, he said it was the picture of an empty-faced society girl."

"Oh!" I exclaimed.

"I—I maintained there were possibilities in the face." He put both hands on the table, and bending forward, looked down at me. "Well, I was a fool, I admit. I said your eyes were kind and candid, in spite of that haughty mouth. You see, I said I was a fool."

"I think you are exceedingly rude," I managed finally. "If you want to know where I found your watch, it was down in the coal cellar. And if you admit you are an idiot, I am not. I—I know all about Bella's bracelet—and the board on the roof, and—oh, if you would only leave—Anna's necklace—on the coal, or somewhere—and get away—"

My voice got beyond me then, and I dropped into a chair and covered my face. I could feel him staring at the back of my head.

"Well, I'll be— something or other," he said finally, and then turned on his heel and went out. By the time I got my eyes dry (yes, I was crying; I always do when I am angry) I heard him coming downstairs, and I looked the watch out of sight. Would any one have foreseen the trouble that watch would make?

Jim was sulky. He dropped into a chair and stretched out his legs, looking gloomily at nothing. Then he got up and ambled into his den, closing the door behind him without having spoken a word. It was more than human nature could stand.

When I went into the den he was stretched on the davenport with his face buried in the cushion. He looked absolutely wilted, and every line of him was drooping.

"Go on out, Kit," he said, in a mumbled voice. "Be a good girl and don't follow me around."

"You are shameless!" I gasped.

"Follow you! When you are hung around my neck like a—like a—"

Millstone was what I wanted to say, but I couldn't think of it.

He turned over and looked up from his cushions like an ill-treated and suffering cherub.

"I'm done for, Kit," he groaned. "Bella went up to the studio after we left, and investigated that corner."

"What did she find? The necklace?" I asked eagerly. He was too wretched to notice this.

"No, that picture of you that I did last winter. She is crazy—she says she is going upstairs and sit in Takahiro's room and take snailpox and die."

"Fiddlesticks!" I said rudely, and somebody hammered on the door and opened it.

"Pardon me for disturbing you," Bella said, in her best dear-me-I'm-glad-I-knocked-manner. "But—Flannigan says the dinner has not come."

"Good Lord!" Jim exclaimed. "I forgot to order the confounded dinner!"

CHAPTER XVII.

A Clash and a Kiss.

The clash that came that evening had been threatening for some time. Take an immovable body, represented by Mr. Harbison and his square jaw, and an irresistible force, Jimmy and his weight, and there is bound to be trouble.

The real fault was Jim's. He had gone entirely mad again over Bella, and thrown prudence to the winds. He mooned at her across the dinner-table, and waylaid her on the stairs or in the back halls, just to hear her voice when she ordered him out of the way. He telephoned for flowers and candy for her quite shamelessly, and he got out a book of photographs that they had taken on their wedding journey, and kept it on the library table. The sole concession he made to our presumptive relationship was to bring me the responsibility for everything that went wrong, and his shirking for buttons.

"You're Unlucky, I'm Thinkin'."

Jim to the telephone and hung around hungrily, suggesting new dishes every minute. And then—he couldn't raise Central. It was 15 minutes before we gave up, and stood staring at one another despairingly.

"Call out of a window and get one of those infernal reporters to do something useful for once," Max suggested. But he was indignantly brushed. We would have starved first. Jim was peering into the transmitter and knocking the receiver against his hand, like a watch that had stepped. But nothing happened. Flannigan reported a box of breakfast food, two lemons and a pineapple cheese, a combination that didn't seem to lead itself to anything.

We went back to the dining room from after face of habit and sat around the table and looked at the lemonade Flannigan had made. Anne would talk about the salad her last cook had concocted, and Max told about a little town in Connecticut where the restaurant keeper smokes a corn-cob pipe while he cooks the most insidious fried clams in America. And Aunt Selma related that in her family they had a recipe for chicken smothered in cream. And then we slipped the weak lemonade and nibbled at the cheese.

"To change this gridiron martyrdom," Dallas said finally, "where's Harbison?" Still looking for his watch.

"Watch!" Everybody said it in a different tone.

"Sure," he responded. "Says his watch was taken last night from the studio. Better get him down to take a squirt at the telephone. Likely he can fix it."

Flannigan was beside me with the cheese. And at that moment I felt Mr. Harbison's stolen watch slip out of my girdle, slide gracefully across my lap, and clatter to the floor. Flannigan stooped, but luckily it had gone under the table. To have had it picked up, to have had to object how I got it, to see them try to ignore my picture pasted in it—oh, it was impossible. I put my foot over it.

"Drop something!" Dallas asked perfunctorily, rising. Flannigan was still half kneeling.

"A fork," I said, as easily as I could, and the conversation went on. But Flannigan knew, and I knew he knew. He watched my every movement like a hawk after that, standing just behind my chair. I dropped my useless napkin, to have it whirled up before it reached the floor. I said to Betty that my shoe buckle was loose, and actually got the watch in my hand, only to let it slip at the critical moment.

Comparing Notes.

The motorist and the aviator met for a confidential chat.

"That's a fine machine you have," said the admiring aviator.

"Yes, it is the greatest farm wagon buster in the country. And how about your aeroplane?"

"Sh! Best chimney buster in the world, old chap."

The Reason.

"I always do the marketing for my wife."

"The last time I did the marketing I got cold feet."

"Why should you do that?"

"Because she told me to; she said people always had pigs' feet at a Dutch lunch."

Shouldn't Blame Him.

"It was a poet that accepted the first presidency of Portugal."

"Well, he had to make a living, didn't he?"

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Law Goes After Immigrant Swindlers

WASHINGTON.—Though the ways of graft are many, and many are the grafters, probably the most contemptible and most plentiful in this class are those who prey on ignorance and poverty. The Department of Justice has undertaken with notable success a war against these swindlers of our citizens, but it has not yet endeavored to protect the immigrant anxious to become a citizen. Perhaps our lawmakers are to blame. As an illustration of this misuse L. Gluck takes the grafting steamship agent or petty banker.

A poor man who has come from the "old country" but a short time before will spend the earnings of one or two years' labor to purchase transportation to the United States for some relative in a foreign land. The understanding is that he will go by direct route from the country he is leaving to his destination. Of course the agent may overcharge. This may be called legitimate graft, as he has to meet with competition, and the overcharge does not amount to much. But that is not all. The emigrant, whether he be Italian, Jew, Greek, or another, receives his ticket; sells what little belongings he has and presents himself with his family, bundle and ticket to the foreign agent. The agent scrutinizes the ticket with great care, apparently, and in a sad voice informs the emigrant there is required more money. Such a scene occurs at every stop-over. This besides being robbed for food and lodgings for which the kind relative across the seas has already paid double.

After much delay he arrives at the seaport and here they take what is left. They let him keep his family. After more delay, he is set on board a ship bound for Canada, generally the port is Halifax. Perhaps the steamship companies know why the immigrant is sent to the United States via Canada, but they won't tell. He arrives at Halifax penniless and is debarred. The fact that he is bound for some town in the United States does not make things any pleasanter for him with the Canadian officials.

His relative is communicated with and while negotiations for his release from the immigrant station are pending the Canadian government charges him for board. If his relative can borrow enough money he becomes only a costly experience but often he must go back home and our country loses another citizen.

These steamship agents are to be found in the foreign quarters of every large American city. In the Ghetto and Little Italy you will find them most abundant. Some of them have been immigrants themselves, but do not hesitate to fleece old-time friends of their childhood.

New Naval Fighter Mighty Submarine

THE largest and most formidable submarine ever constructed for the United States government will be given a trial trip soon. If the craft proves a success it will have a large bearing on the future of the navy, will tend to increase the importance of sub-surface war vessels, and at the same time to lessen the importance of the great battleship.

It is the intention to cruise to New York with the boat on her trial trip. Later it is expected the strange craft will be sent across the Atlantic.

Among the features of the new submarine are hydroplanes. These correspond to the planes of an aeroplane. They are assigned for the purpose of steadying the boat and holding it even when under the water. Another feature is the drop keel, which weighs several tons, and can be released in case of an accident, thus adding to the buoyancy of the vessel. On the bottom of the boat are wheels calculated to protect the bottom when the vessel drops down to the bed of the ocean. Various other features are important in the construction of this type of submarine. Enough storage air is provided for 48 hours under water. The vessel is provided with powerful gasoline engines, which propel her when running at the surface. Just under the water the power is furnished by storage batteries.

Its length is 161 feet and its displacement about 335 tons. The government contract calls for 14 knots speed, but it is expected to make 18. This is when the submarine is traveling on the surface. The submerged speed called for by the contract is nine and a half knots.

It is designed to travel alone. The armament consists of six torpedo tubes and room aboard is provided for ten torpedoes. The crew will consist of about 22 members. Lieut. Kenneth Whiting of the navy is now in command.

If the boat bears out all the representations made concerning it, it is easy to see that naval warfare will be to a large extent revolutionized.

Strange Children.

George Bancroft, the historian, used to relate with gusto a joke that he caught while trotting to school along a Massachusetts country road. It was about old Levi Lincoln, says Percy H. Epler in "Master Minds at the Commonwealth's Heart."

The old gentleman was nearly blind. A flock of geese was being driven gobbling up Lincoln street. Leaning far out of the carriage, the fine old aristocrat, thinking they were children, threw out a handful of pebbles, graciously exclaiming:

"God bless you, my children!"

An Astonished Boy.

In February of this year a Wisconsin farmer took his twelve-year-old boy to a village for the first time, and there the lad saw a train of cars. He was so astonished at the sight that he lost the power of speech for three weeks.

If that youngster is ever taken to a circus or a zoological garden he'll surely be struck dumb for the rest of his life. His father's farm must be hidden away in a hole in the ground.

A Lunch Fit for a King.

An active and successful young lady tells her food experience:

"Some years ago I suffered from nervous prostration, induced by continuous brain strain and improper food, added to a great grief."

"I was ordered to give up my work, as there was great danger of my mind falling me altogether. My stomach was in bad condition (nervous dyspepsia, I think now) and when Grape-Nuts food was recommended to me, I had no faith in it. However, I tried it, and soon there was a marked improvement in my condition."

"I had been troubled with faint spells, and had used a stimulant to revive me. I found that by eating Grape-Nuts at such times I was relieved and suffered no bad effects, which was a great gain. As to my other troubles—nervous prostration, dyspepsia, etc.—on the Grape-Nuts diet they soon disappeared."

"I wish especially to call the attention of office girls to the great benefit I derived from the use of Grape-Nuts as a noon luncheon. I was thoroughly tired of cheap restaurants and ordinary lunches, and so made the experiment of taking a package of Grape-Nuts food with me, and then shipping out at noon and getting a slice of my sweet cream to add to it."

"I found that this simple dish, flaked off with an apple, peach, orange, or a bunch of grapes made a lunch fit for a king, and one that agreed with me perfectly."

"I throw no on my Grape-Nuts diet that I did not have to give up my work at all, and in the two years have had only four lost days charged up against me."

"Let me add that your suggestions in the Little Book, 'Road to Wellville,' are, in my opinion, invaluable, especially to women." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Big Pay for Woman Committee Clerk

IT is a "girl from the golden west" who draws the largest salary ever paid by the United States to a woman. Leona M. Wells of Wyoming has been appointed assistant secretary of the committee on appropriations, and with that position goes a salary of $2,500. She has another advantage over nearly all the other women, for she can go home and vote just like any other citizen of Wyoming.

For several years she has been rated as one of the most efficient of government employees and has served on both the claims and the military affairs committees, the routine of which she quickly mastered, making herself valuable to the members of the committee by always having much desired information ready for their use.

She made such a hit with the claims committee that they included an item in the general deficiency fund of last year allowing her $2,600 for extra work. Pending before the committee when Mrs. Wells did this extra work were 50,000 claims, some of them grown old and mossy since first presented.

She prepared a list of these 50,000 claims, giving a short history of each and showing what action had been taken. This was printed, and is a valuable reference document.

Attorneys appearing before the claims committee were sorry to see Mrs. Wells transferred, for they often sought her knowledge of claims to aid them in presenting the cause of clients.

In her new position Mrs. Wells will have more work and more responsibility. The appropriations total about a billion dollars. She was born in Illinois and went to Wyoming in 1899. A year later she came to Washington and has been here ever since. Mrs. Wells is devoted to outdoor amusements, and while not a rampant suffragette, she is proud of being able to go home and vote for her friends.

Domestic Service Bureau Is Planned

SOCIETY women interested in philanthropic work carried on through the Gentlemen's League, one of the social organizations of Washington, are deeply interested in a movement proposed and started by Mrs. Julia James that has for its object the establishment of an intelligence bureau to be operated as an auxiliary of the league.

The new branch of the organization is to be incorporated under the name of the National Co-operative Intelligence Bureau. It will undertake to supply employees of all kinds to Washington homes, from social secretaries, linguists, readers and companions, to all manner of domestic help. It will have offices centrally located. There will be a fee charged those supplied with employees and a nominal fee charged the persons placed in positions. The bureau will undertake to give its indigentment to the moral character of the employees supplied.

as well as to their capabilities to perform their particular kind of work.

All applicants for positions will be required to file a brief statement of where they have filled positions, and before they are inducted and placed in other positions the officers of the bureau will make a thorough and systematic investigation. If the investigation of the character of the applicant proves unsatisfactory she will not be listed.

The bureau has the endorsement of some of the best known clergymen, professional and business men of the city.

Dictating our Own Prices

WHEN the doors of The Globe open at 9:00 o'clock Thursday morning it will be the signal for the greatest commercial activity that our city has ever experienced. Waukegan's retail history bears no records of such a gigantic bargain event as will be launched on this day. Thousands of dollars will be put into the pockets of the buying public through the money savings of this sale---your pockets, your neighbors pockets and the pockets of thrifty people for miles around. The mighty Manufacturers' Outlet Sale starts on a grand ten days' career; a career with a broad field for public good; a field from which you may gather an endless share of bargains---the fruits of our enormous purchase.

The manufacturers needed the money and needed it badly, too.

They were hard pressed for cash; the season being backward, sales fell off and many orders were cancelled which left them with large surplus stocks on hand. They were compelled to convert these surplus stocks into whatever money they would bring. We carefully selected over $20,000 worth of this surplus merchandise---high class dependable goods, every bit of it, securing it at a price barely covering the cost of production. It's now on sale at such ridiculously low prices that many lines will scarcely last the limit of the sale---that is why we say, COME EARLY, come tomorrow and get the "plums."

TAFT DEFENDS PACT

PRESIDENT SAYS CANADIAN TREATY WILL BE A HELP TO FARMERS.

BELIEVES BILL WILL PASS

Hits Lumber Trust and Paper Manufacturers, and Scores New York Publicity Firm for Arousing Opposition to Reciprocity Measure.

Chicago.—In his speech before the Western Economic society, President Taft attacked the "interests" that are opposing the Canadian reciprocity agreement with Canada, saying that the lumber and paper dealers were struggling to kill the treaty in order to maintain high prices.

In one of the most comprehensive addresses that he has ever made on the subject, the president outlined some of the methods employed by the opponents of reciprocity, practically told the farmers that they were being "cheeked" by special interests and said that the fate of the agreement rested not so much with the United States senate as with the people of the country.

If the farmer and the country at large, he said, could be brought to understand that this treaty was in the interests of the majority of the people he would no longer fear the coming vote in the senate.

The president was not sparing in his words. He said the reasons for the opposition to the treaty by the lumber trust and by the paper manufacturers, and without using names, scored a New York firm, some of whose members recently appeared at the hearings before the senate finance committee in Washington, ostensibly in behalf of the National Grange, objecting to the submission of the agreement.

He attacked the monopolistic conditions prevailing in the lumber industry, as revealed by the reports of the commissioner of corporations.

"The control of the country's lumber supply is in comparatively few hands," he said, "and they are so friendly that the chances of a monopoly is neither remote nor impossible."

"I admit that as lumber is essential to all classes, farmers and merchants, as the price has gone far beyond what it ever was in the past, and as our supply is being rapidly exhausted, we ought, when we can, to enlarge the sources from which our people can secure it at reasonable prices."

In spite of protests that are arrayed against it, the president expressed the belief that the agreement would become a law.

"The bill," said he, "will pass, if it passes at all, because of the force of public opinion in its favor."

The president took great pains in his replies to the objections raised in behalf of the farmers, arguing that not only would the treaty not injure the agriculturists of the United States, but that it would be a positive benefit to them in the long run.

DIES IN A COACH RUNAWAY

One Man Killed, Several Persons Hurt When Vehicle Turns Over in Yosemite Valley.

Yosemite, Cal.—In a stage coach runaway on the steep grade between the big tree grove at Wawona and the door of Yosemite valley, H. S. Loring of Alhambra, Pa., was instantly killed, three women were seriously hurt and several other persons were slightly injured.

At one of the most dangerous points on the grade the horses attached to the front stage became frightened and unmanageable. The driver failed to hold the vehicle and the horses started at a mad gallop down the winding road.

The driver managed to hold the frightened animals in the rear until fearfully that the runaway would result in the stage with its entire load going over a steep bank, he turned the horses into the inner bank. The stage turned completely over and several of the passengers were caught beneath it.

NEW DYNAMITE CONFESSION

Oklahoma Iron Worker Says John J. McNamara Hired Him to Make Structure Drawings.

Muskogee, Okla.—John Delaney, a structural iron worker, confessed that he had been employed by John J. McNamara, secretary and treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Iron Workers of America, to travel throughout the country carefully inspecting all structures being erected by nonunion labor, getting carefully made drawings of such structures and marking the spot with a cross where dynamite could be most easily placed and would be most effective. The confession was made to Harry Egan, a representative of the Muskogee Phoenix, in the presence of witnesses.

Colquitt Is Threatened. Austin, Tex.—Governor Colquitt, leader of the "wets," is going to Fort Worth despite a letter warning him that he may be killed if he attends an anti-prohibition rally there. He has received many other threats.

Seventeen-Year Locust Appear. Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y.—What naturalists say is the 17-year locust is here in full force. Trees throughout the town are alive with the insects. The characteristic "W" is noticed at the tip of the insects' wings.

CASTRO HEADED WEST

BELIEVED HE WILL STIR UP ANOTHER REVOLUTION.

Cuban Government Hears That Exiled President is on Way to Venezuela.

Havana.—The steamer Legaspi, en route for Central American ports, is in the harbor here, and from what is believed to be authoritative information from Spain the Cuban government believes that Cipriano Castro, the exiled president of Venezuela, is on board that vessel.

The Legaspi passed in Motro Castle, but the custom house and health office being closed, it will be impossible to communicate with the vessel. According to this information, Castro is traveling incognito. It is believed also that he is carefully disguised, but it is unlikely that he can avoid detection by the Cuban officials who will board the Legaspi.

Caracas, Venezuela.—The Venezuelan government is making a diligent search in shipping and other circles to learn the whereabouts of Cipriano Castro, the former president of this republic, who is now in exile. The government claims to have knowledge that Castro is planning a revolution against the administration of President Gomez.

The sudden and complete disappearance of the ex-president from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, and his reported sailing ostensibly for Havana, have created the greatest interest and some amusement here.

WANTS U. S. TO FIX PRICES

Chairman Gary Declares Enforced Publicity and Government Control Alone Can Kill Trusts.

Washington.—Robert H. Gary, chairman of the directors of the United States Steel corporation, in his testimony before the Stanley steel trust investigation committee of the house of representatives, declared that the Tennessee company took the first steps toward its acquisition by the United States Steel corporation.

He said "It was offered to us many times" and that Lewis Cass Lodge had made the final suggestion. The committee will summon Mr. Lodge.

Mr. Gary told of saying Grant B. Sealey, a member of the Tennessee Coal and Iron syndicate, from financial difficulties in 1907 by a loan of $1,200,000 par value of United States Steel stock, $200,000 par value of the Tennessee stock being taken as security.

J. P. Morgan declared widespread financial ruin might follow. Mr. Gary said, "I agree some one bought the Tennessee company's securities upon which Moore & Sealey had obtained loans."

President Roosevelt was first contacted for fear of injudiciously conceding and consequent worse financial conditions.

Mr. Gary declared that enforced publicity and government control of corporations must come, even as to prices. He believed the Sherman antitrust law was too archaic to deal with modern conditions and never could fully prevent great combinations of capital.

CAUCUS ADOPTS WOOL TAX

Proposed Democratic Revision of Tariff Unanimously Approved—Rates Stashed One-Half.

Washington.—The proposed Democratic revision of the wool tariff, the Underwood bill, was unanimously approved by a full Democratic caucus. Its endorsement followed a me rapid maneuvering by the Democratic house leaders, who devised a scheme which effectually disposed of the opposition of the free wool advocates, backed by the open support of William Jennings Bryan.

Chairman Underwood gave the complete text of the proposed revision of the wool tariff to 200 Democrats who assembled in the party caucus. It proposes a duty of 20 per cent. on raw wool, a reduction of more than 50 per cent. from the Payne-Aldrich law, now in force.

ACT ON STEPHENSON CASE

Resolution in Wisconsin Legislature Demands Federal Senate Shall Probe Bribery Charge.

Madison, Wis.—Progressive Republican leaders in Wisconsin are determined to force consideration of a resolution charging Senator Isaac Stephenson with having bought his seat in the United States senate and requesting that body to investigate his election.

In accordance with this determination, the senate judiciary committee recommended for adoption a resolution drafted by Senator Blaine, chairman of the committee, declaring Stephenson guilty of bribery in connection with his election and asking the federal senate to probe the matter.

STILL ANOTHER "DISINTEGRATION"

FOIL MADERO PLOT

REBEL LEADER AND HUNDREDS OF DANCERS WOULD HAVE BEEN BLOWN UP.

WOULD BE ASSASSIN CAUGHT

Dropped Mayor of Guadalupe, With Can Full of Dynamite, Is Caught by Guards Who Prevent Use of Infernal Machine.

El Paso, Tex.—Soon after the departure of Francisco I. Madero for Mexico City details were made known of an alleged attempt to dynamite him. The plot was to have been carried out during the ball which Madero attended in Juarez.

When the festivities were at their height, Cruz Rey, former mayor of the town of Guadalupe, located forty miles east of Juarez, jumped from a street car in front of the building in which Madero and his wife were hosts to a large number of El Paso and Juarez society folk at a farrowed reception and made a dash for the front door.

Under Rey's arm was a home-made bomb, a tin can filled with dynamite and steel plugs sufficient to have wrecked the building and to have killed half the people on the floor. A guard caught him and assisted by a number of others who came to call, hurried him away.

Rey was ousted from his position as mayor last February when Madero first took the field, and made Guadalupe his headquarters. In Juarez the statement is made that he will be executed.

Madero is being guarded closely as he makes his journey to the Mexican capital. United States secret service men and employees of the railroad secret service are watching his car. They surround it at every stop and pieces of the various towns are summoned in advance by telegraph to be at the station and cooperate by pointing out local suspicious characters.

Telegrams from Sonora state that Diego Rado, governor of Sonora, personal friend of Porfirio Diaz, has been assassinated and that Red Lopez, who led the insurgents in the attack on Agua Prieta and then abandoned them, was shot to death, attempting to escape from the guards. Lopez had been sentenced to seven years in prison.

Information received here direct from Mazatlan, Sonora, state that the city has fallen into the hands of the insurgents. The peace pact has been signed almost two weeks and the fighting continues.

Following the departure of Madero, Gen. R. J. Viljoen, military adviser to the rebel leader, declared that permission has been given by the United States to send insurgent troops through this country to Lower California to suppress the Socialist rebellion in that territory.

General Viljoen announced that he will head an expedition from here and will be joined by others from Sonora.

CONGRESS IS DEFIED

TAFT REFUSES RECORD OF PAYMENT FOR PORTRAIT.

Executive Is Inclined to Accept Fast Roosevelt Passed on Deal as Final.

Washington.—A lively controversy over the executive's right to withhold confidential papers from a congressional investigating committee was precipitated by a flat refusal of Secretary of State Knox, on the instruction of President Taft, to lay before the house committee on expenditures in the state department books showing the record of the payment for the portrait of ex-Secretary of State Day.

The committee is seeking to discover what became of $1,500 of the $2,450 voucher drawn for the payment of the portrait. Artist Rosenthal received only $550 for his work and the $1,000 is unaccounted for.

The president held that $2,450 was paid out of the emergency fund for unforeseen emergencies in the diplomatic and consular service and for extending diplomatic intercourse with foreign nations, which congress had provided need not be accounted for if the president certifies that an item should be paid from this fund. President Roosevelt had made such certification.

Furthermore, Secretary Knox explained to the committee that it was improper to produce the books because thereby other undisclosed items of expenditure would be revealed.

President Taft in his letter to Secretary Knox said that, in view of the facts and that the emergency fund expenditure for this period have under the express authority of congress been certified by Secretary Hay for my predecessor, President Roosevelt, as being of such a character as ought not to be made public, I feel that nothing but some extraordinary circumstances would justify me in directing you to take such records before the committee, because the discretion thus exercised under the statute should, in my judgment, in general be conclusive and binding upon this point.

The president added that when Secretary Knox concluded his investigation of the particular expenditure and submit the matter to him he (the president) would determine whether the money was lawfully or dishonestly and improperly misappropriated.

100,000 TO SING ANTHEM

"America" Will Take the Place of Firecrackers in Denver's Fourth of July Program.

Denver, Colo.—The national anthem, sung on the streets of Denver by 100,000 persons, will be one of the features of the safe and sane Fourth of July celebration planned for this city. A great street parade, in which floats representing all nations will take part, will stop at the tolling of a bell and the crowds in the streets, every member of which will be provided with the words of "America," will unite in the anthem.

SEEKS CONVENTION IN 1912

Baltimore, With $100,000 Fund Pledged, Is Making Campaign for Democratic National Meeting.

Washington.—Baltimore, with a $100,000 fund pledged as evidence of good faith, is making a vigorous effort to secure the Democratic national convention next year. The argument is made that the city is nearer the center of population than any large city seeking the convention, and that Maryland is a neutral state, without a candidate for the nomination and without a favorite.

Beat Overturns, Six Drown. Salt Lake City, Utah.—A motor boat containing 17 persons was capsized on Utah Lake, 20 miles south of this city and at least six are known to have been drowned. The power gave out and an attempt was made to hoist a sail in the strong wind.

Mine Cave-In Kills Two. Hancock, Mich.—John Wupio and Louis Johnson were killed and Oscar Koel and Otto Laustkalnen seriously injured by a cave-in of rock in the main shaft at the Quincy mine.

ARMY MAN REBUKED

PRESIDENT SCORERS COL. JOSEPH GARRARD FOR HIS CLUR UPON JEW.

STING IN LETTER BY TAFT

Commander-in-Chief Denies Statement of Officer That Jewish Men Are Not Socially Equal to Gentiles.

Washington.—Col. Joseph Garrard, U. S. A., commanding the cavalry post at Fort Myer, Va., was severely reprimanded by the secretary of war, under orders from President Taft, for reporting adversely an application of Frank Bloom, a private in the Third field artillery, now on duty on the Mexican border, for the right to take examinations for promotion to commissioned grade on the ground of Jewish parentage.

Several years ago Bloom was urged for appointment to West Point, President Roosevelt, not being in a position at the time to make the appointment, suggested to Bloom that he enlist and, "like a true American," fight his way up from the ranks.

The young man took the advice, entered the army, where he is said to have made a good record, and recently took his first examination for promotion. It is said that Bloom failed in this examination, but in view of the prejudice brought about by Colonel Garrard's endorsement the soldier will be ordered up for final examination again in September.

On this point President Taft, in a letter to Simon Wolf of this city, said: "I shall take steps to see that the examination to which Private Bloom is subjected is one in which he will be given a fair chance and not be exposed to any unjust prejudice."

Colonel Garrard's endorsement on Bloom's papers to which President Taft so strongly objected, when brought to his attention, was as follows: "The applicant is a son of Joseph A. Bloom, of Jewish persuasion, who is, now, and has been for a number of years, a tailor at this post. His associates, as far as I know and that of his family, have been with enlisted men and their families and have been respectable. The young man is undoubtedly honest and upright, ambitious and probably deserving, but for the reasons stated I would not desire him in my command as an officer and a social and personal associate."

The presence of the applicant's family at a military post would be a source of discipline and their probable treatment a source of mortification to them and frequent cause of trouble to commanding officers. From an experience of many years I have found, except in few cases, few communities where Jews are received as desirable social associates."

In directing the secretary of war to inquire into the matter, President Taft wrote in part:

"It is difficult for me to read the endorsement of Colonel Garrard, set forth in this letter, with patience and without condemnatory words that had better not be written. The statements made by Colonel Garrard are not true with reference to the standing that Jews have in this country; and I regret, as commander-in-chief of the army and the navy, that any officer of either should permit himself in an official document to give evidence of such unfounded and narrow race prejudice as that contained in this endorsement."

LUMBER INQUIRY IS BEGUN

Special Federal Grand Jury Starts Work at Chicago After Warning by Judge Landis.

Chicago.—Investigation of conditions in the lumber industry was begun by a special federal grand jury impaneled in Judge Landis' court.

The federal inquiry, which aims to secure evidence which will warrant criminal prosecution of big lumber dealers, started in a manner to assure the greatest secrecy. Unusual precautions were taken when the jury began its work and the government officials announced that they intended to keep every detail of their work secret if possible until indictments finally were voted. Judge Landis in his instructions to the jury took pains to impress upon them the necessity of secrecy.
